

Hermes Equity Ownership Services (EOS) selects Zurich-based RepRisk AG as its environmental, social and governance (ESG) data provider.

Hermes EOS, a leader in responsible investment and stewardship, is pleased to announce it will begin using RepRisk to monitor its clients' investments in public and private companies for ESG risks.

Colin Melvin, Chief Executive of Hermes EOS said "RepRisk's service provides relevant, timely and useful data which will alert us to negative news associated with companies in our clients' portfolios. This will supplement our current screening process and assist us in engaging with companies on relevant environmental, social and governance issues with the aim of improving their performance."

Melvin said: "We have surveyed the market to identify best in class screening providers. Adding RepRisk to our stable of such providers consolidates our range of existing data sources and adds to the scope of our engagement work and to the service we provide to our clients."

RepRisk is a specialized international data provider that identifies environmental, social and governance risks for financial institutions, investment professionals and compliance functions. The RepRisk® tool monitors companies' activities from a third-party perspective and its quantitative risk indicator (RRI) enables easy identification of gross violators and aids negative norm-based screening. Hermes will use both the RepRisk® tool and RepRisk's screening reports.

"The RepRisk tool is unique in that it offers a different perspective to the data produced by companies themselves in relation to their environmental and social impacts and governance issues", said Melvin.

RepRisk covers all major business languages and its database currently includes over 15,000 controversial companies and 3,000 projects, and is growing daily.

CEO of RepRisk, Phillip Aeby, said "RepRisk's dynamic data covering criticism of companies from a broad range of media sources helps to effectively manage risk. There is an increasing awareness of the importance of including such extra-financial information in the analysis and investment decision-making process in order to ensure long-term performance."

"In selecting RepRisk, Hermes EOS has demonstrated its commitment to gaining a true indication of companies' ESG performance through access to up-to-date, third party sustainability information."
