

RepRisk's Asia-Pacific Representative, Anny Barlow, is interviewed by SRI Connect

This week's interview is with Anny Barlow, RepRisk Representative Asia Pacific, based in Vietnam.

RepRisk is the leading provider of dynamic business intelligence on Environmental, Social and Governance risks (ESG). RepRisk's business intelligence allows companies and financial institutions to proactively assess ESG issues and monitor risk trends that may present financial and enterprise, reputational and compliance risks. The database currently includes over 25,000 companies, 6,000 projects, 4,500 NGOs and 4,000 governmental bodies. It is updated continuously and the number of entities is growing daily and remains unlimited. Anny Barlow has been a RepRisk Representative in the Asian Pacific region since May 2011. Previously she worked as a strategic consultant for Just Screening and Marketing Director at Oceanic Imaging Consultants, Inc.

Anny's background, with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Oceanography and a minor in Mathematics, have led her to focus on the environmental issues or 'E' factors that most interest sustainability analysts and investors, as well as why and how these measurements are integrated into analysis. The focus of her interest is deciphering if the correct indicators are being watched. Anny has a personal interest in obtaining global knowledge at cultural, interpersonal and social levels, leading her to explore many emerging market countries throughout South America and South East Asia over the past five years. Anny is currently based in Vietnam, where she works closely with a local socially responsible community organization, which uses sport to help develop individuals, KINN Pro Rider Team.
